

FOOTBALL EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITY

East Berkshire College

FEDO is a two or three year full-time course for 16-19 year olds who have a good footballing background and also value the importance of academic study.

The FEDO scheme is an opportunity for students to gain a recognised educational qualification and work towards achieving their football ambitions with the help of high quality coaching and an extensive opportunity to play in the East Berkshire College and Hayes & Yeading Utd. F.C. Youth Teams.

The scheme commenced in 1997 and has attracted a wide interest from schools, professional clubs, local authorities, parents and ambitious young players who are keen to benefit from the expertise and excellent sporting facilities offered by East

Berkshire College and Hayes & Yeading Utd. F.C. The scheme has been very successful with players progressing through to Hayes & Yeading First Team. In 2006, the College became English Schools & Colleges U19 National champions and winners of the Premier Division of the Allied Counties Youth League. Several players who have completed the FEDO scheme at East Berkshire College have gone on to represent the county and English colleges.

Former FEDO player Lloyd Owusu, who has played with Reading and Sheffield Wednesday, described the scheme as

“a great opportunity to advance your education and holistic skills alongside your football development. The scheme played an important role in my progression into the professional game.”

The course is run from the East Berkshire College Langley Campus and the teams will play in the English Colleges National U19 League and the Allied Counties U18 Youth League Premier Division. Professional Coaching Licence holders from the College will coach students throughout the FEDO scheme.
